

View 1: An application of stochastic gradient descent for classification and regression with a potentially very rich hypothesis class.

View 2: A brain-inspired network of neuron-like computing elements that learn distributed representations.

View 3: A method for building applications that make predictions based on huge amounts of data in very complex domains.